

WALL STREET SCARED SOME

Too Many People Investing in Automobiles to Suit the Bulls and Bears.

WANT ALL THE MONEY THEMSELVES

Wall Street estimates that approximately $500,000,000 will be spent this year by Americans for the purchase of automobiles. Of this vast sum probably 85 per cent. will be for machines of domestic make, the only foreign product in which will be rubber for the tires, of which about $75,000,000 will be used.

It is computed by statisticians of New York's financial district that half of this outlay would be used for stock market speculation but for the nation wide craze for "joy cars." With such an enormous amount of money diverted from stock trading channels, conditions in the street are now akin to those that prevailed during the 1907 panic.

In six months there has been a shrinkage of $150,000,000 in the market value securities dealt in upon the Stock Exchange, due mainly to lack of public support. The lambs, always a fruitful source of revenue for the wily bulls and bears, no longer gambol with their old abandon and have become as scarce as hen's teeth about Wall, Nassau & Broad Streets. All that are left are the professional traders to whom the limited pickings are not overattractive.

In the hope of checking the spread of the automobile tide, the assistance of local bankers has been enlisted. The latter are now vociferously deprecating the mania. They claim it is inoculating the small business men of the country as well as the affluent merchants of the city, and that in order to gratify their appetite for machines this class is mortgaging its homes and property. This cry of alarm however is not borne out by the mortgage records which show but a normal state of borrowing on the real estate. Neither do the reports of the Clearing House indicate that bank deposits are being appreciably withdrawn to enable customers to buy machines. What money is being used by the public for the purchase of cars is its surplus cash which in other years found its way into stock exchange houses for less exhilarating employment. This is the money that created inflated and fictitious markets, and enabled the gamblers of The Street to live in opulence while their clients grew two grey hairs where there was one before.

Throughout the financial district, especially among those who depend upon the outside public for their business, there seems to be a disposition to deplore the recent purchase by J. Pierpont Morgan of the controlling interest in one of the largest of the domestic automobile factories. They think it will have a bad effect on the market and help to retard the return of prosperity in The Street by giving undue prestige to the industry to whose development they attribute most of their troubles. Their chapin recalls the feeling existing in the district some years ago during one of the intermittent periods of depression to which it is subject, when John D. Rockefeller, instead of encouraging a ship-big eastern cities, which have since netted him handsome profits.

In reply to Wall Street's lament about the diversion of money from the stock market, the president of one of the large automobile companies this week threw a jolt into the enemy's camp in a statement saying that the public had grown tired of frittering away its savings in Wall Street gambling that rarely netted it anything but headaches and insomnia, and had determined to get some wholesome pleasure out of its cash through the purchase of machines that would enable them to give enjoyment and recreation to others as well as to themselves.

Kentucky is Standing Third.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The annual report of the commissioner of internal revenue shows that the State of Kentucky ranks third in the aggregate collections of internal revenue for the last fiscal year, with a total of $82,200,278.47.

The State of Illinois ranks first with over $19,000,000. New York second with over $36,000,000, Indiana fourth with $28,000,000 and Pennsylvania fifth with $26,000,000.

The collections by internal revenue districts are as follows: Second Kentucky, Edward T. Franks collector, $1,435,118.81. Second Kentucky, Lawson Reno collector, $1,982,388.45. Fifth Kentucky, Joseph A. Craft collector, $1,802,938.80. Fifth Kentucky, Ludlow F. Petty collector, $7,204,246.98. Sixth Kentucky, Maurice L. Galvin, collector, $4,295.01. Seventh Kentucky, Samuel J. Roberts, collector, $3,971,136.68. Eighth Kentucky, J. Sherman Cooper, collector, $3,068,491.24.

The receipts for the case stamps for distilled spirits bottled in bond during the year and that in order to gratify their appetite for machines this class is mortgaging its homes and property. This cry of alarm however is not borne out by the mortgage records which show but a normal state of borrowing on the real estate. Neither do the reports of the Clearing House indicate that bank deposits are being appreciably withdrawn to enable customers to buy machines. MUST HAVE RELEASES RECORDED AT ONCE

In Order to Escape Payment of Taxes on Mortgages and Land Liens.

County Clerk Will T. Mills notifies all tax-payers who have mortgages or land liens recorded in his office that have been released, to call and have same recorded to that effect. If this action is not done before the first day of September the County Clerk will be forced to enter a tax upon the mortgages and land liens. This is an important matter to the people of the county interested and should have their prompt attention. If you want to escape the payment of taxes on these mortgages and liens, have the releases recorded at once.

Gene to Her Reward.

Mrs. Ed Adams, of this city, died at her home Friday night. She had been in ill health for some time, and was also having chills. On Friday she was able to be up around the house, but complained of feeling badly.

When her husband came home from work he found she had a high fever and suggested that he go for a physician. Mrs. Adams did not think it necessary, but her husband went anyhow and returned in a short time accompanied by Dr. Johnson. In the mean time, Mrs. Adams had lain down on the bed and on being asked how she was, replied "I am burning up." Before anything could be done for her, she was dead.

Mrs. Adams was formerly Miss Fannie Hibbs, she was about 24 years old and had been married a little over a year. Her husband is grief stricken over the loss and occurrence and has the sympathy of the community.

The interment took place at the Earlington Cemetery Saturday afternoon in the presence of a number of friends.

It is probably that her sudden death was caused from a congestive chill.

Clint Ruby's Stock Attached.

The stock of the Clint Ruby book store was attached Friday morning by Sheriff Stanley, following an action instituted in quarterly court by M. K. Gordon and Will O. Morton, executors of the late John G. Morton, on a $80 note of long standing.

It is said that other claims will be filed by various parties, right away.

It is reported that Mr. Ruby will take the bankrupt law.

He is now in Chicago, where he has been for several weeks.

Mr. Ruby is one of the foremost citizens of Madisonville and for the past few years has conducted one of the best business houses in the city. It will be a surprise to the people of the city to learn of the attachment issued on his stock.

Reunion to be Held at Fulton.

Notices have been sent out by Brigadier General W. J. Stone, of the Second Brigade, Kentucky division, United Confederate Veterans, that the annual meeting of the brigade will be held at Fulton, Ky., on September 15.

The Ned Merriweather camp of Christian union is included in the program.

A program of much interest is being arranged for the occasion and a large attendance of the veterans of this region is expected.

The election of a colonel, lieutenant colonel and major for each of the two regiments composing the 4th and 5th brigades.

SOMETHING ABOUT OUR CHURCHES

What Would Earlington Be Without Churches?—We Do Not Realize Good They Do.

ATTENDANCE SHOULD BE BETTER.

That the churches in any community exercise a most potent influence for good, is conceded by all except the most rabid or blinded infidel whose egotism and self-conceit blind his mind to the inestimable value of Christianity. But to what extent are our churches valuable in this community? The Galilean teacher said of His disciples: "Ye are the light of the world." "Ye are the salt of the earth." Hence if all His disciples are the light of the world and the salt of the earth, the logical as well as the scriptural conclusion is that they are the light of the community in which they live.

These declarations, however, do not preclude the possibility of the light going out—being hid under a bushel—or the salt losing its saltiness. But certainly no reasonable or fair-minded person would accuse the churches of being wholly composed of nited bands of hypocrites. For it matters not to what extent sin, in its many forms, may prevail the ranks of any church, you will find, within its membership, consecrated men and women. And it should be borne in mind that it only requires a few or the above mentioned class to become the light of the community.

There is not a man in our town, however indifferent to the claims of Christianity, who would want to raise his family here if there were no churches or church influence, for he at once recognizes them as the guardians of the morals of the community. What would be the condition of this community at the end of the next ten years if from this time until then the churches were closed? To what extent would of your life and property be safe?

And yet with all the influence of the organized agencies of the churches, the devil too frequently holds high carnival. What may we not expect if wholly divested of these good influences?

With these facts before us why shouldn't the people take more pride in their churches? It is not necessary to build stately mansions for worship, but attending your church services more regularly and contribute more readily and indeed more liberally toward their support. Nothing speaks better for a town and nothing adds more to your schools, and tends to develop your citizenship in the direction of usefulness than your churches.

Why Men Wear Trousers.

No living man of this age ever deliberately chose to adopt "trousers." He was forced into them and all other eccentricities of dress by women. In the very earliest sartorial experience he is swathed in a queer bundle of incoherent baggages by woman. Lyster she puffs him in cute dresses so that the neighbors can't tell him from his little sister. Still later she cuts off his curls and puts him in knickerbockers, and he puts on long pants when she gives the word, up before. That is all man has to do with wearing trousers. Women forced him into them in the first place and now he is

News of the Mines

A steady, quiet week's run is reported from Hecla.

Arnold, No. 11, put in 5 8-4 days last week and everything reported as serene as a duck in a thunder storm.

The timbers are all framed, ready for the new No. 11 scale, which will be installed just as soon as possible.

Hugh Griffin, who looks after the welfare of a "sinus domesticus" at Fox Run, preyed on helpless relatives here last Sunday.

Elgie Hibbs, of Arnold, descended "like a wolf on the fold" upon unoffending relatives at Mortons Gay last Sunday. We ask prayers for the stricken ones.

Supt. James Blanks, of Victoria, was in our city Friday evening and tarried to attend a lodge meeting until a late hour. We will bet a coon skin that he had to give his wife some good lodge-ical reasons for staying out so late.

Our civilized engineers worked at Fox Run two days this week putting up "sights." The capitalizing of their buggy on the return trip has led uncharitable people to conclude that they either neglected the use of a little fore-sight or had taken something which knocked off their hind sight.

W. D. Cavanaugh and a posse of co-laborers installed the new air receiver at Arnold Sunday. This job involved some very difficult piping as the pipes all approached at varying degrees of angle, and although it was a rush job, we understand that they deliberately worked it out "by degrees."

A crew of determined men succeeded at last in raising the pipe from the drilled hole near the old Bascomb place last week, which was stuck so fast that no application of tackle would not move it until a combination of jack screws was applied. Of course, from a mechanical view point, such a combination will bear the closest scrutiny.

George Wyatt, the great king pin of No. 9, left Sunday for the Mammoth Cave. The major part of the trip was by the same route that lots of people travel to reach heaven, viz by water. We venture to say that he will find that country is justly celebrated for its great-hole-iness.

Ermitt Wyatt has had a temporary cnbit added to his stature. During his uncle's absence he is the king bee of No. 9. He tells us that their run last week was about as usual. He wears his new honors with becoming grace, except, of course, his expression is a little more "be-nice" than usual.

George FanH, better known as Caesar, came near getting over heated one day last week. He was looking after some young trees and lending a helping hand in trimming up some of them and became so hot he had to desert and go home. Of course any one can see at a glance that he got tree-mendous hot.

The services of the trouble crew was called into action at the lake this week. Boat house, No. 2, was some time ago perpetrated in the lake by a storm and drifted around in front of number one and settled to the bottom. These gentlemen, who have the reputed ability to Yank Hades (old version) from a lifeless eddy, affixed wire rope tackle to the house, attached a crab to the same and snaked it to terra firma. That is to say that while it is a terra to contemplate, yet it is on a firm basis than heretofore.

Have Nothing to do With Meetings.

Rev. S. J. Thompson, presiding elder of the Methodist church of the Henderson district, stated that the camp meeting now in progress at Sebree is not being held on the Cascade camp grounds, nor is it being conducted under the auspices of the Methodist church as a districts conference decided not to hold a meeting this season.

Rev. Thompson said many people thought the meeting was being conducted by the Methodist church.

Thirty Cases of Typhoid Fever.

Wheatcroft is now the scene of many cases of typhoid fever, some of which proven fatal. A report from there says thirty persons were under the care of a physician, and many of them are victims of this dreaded fever.

While no deaths have thus far been directly due to the fever, it is to be feared, unless checked at once serious results may be the outcome.

Justifying His Judgment.

Mrs. Flittson—I declare to goodness, your judgment is getting worse every day!

Flittson—What's the matter now?

Mrs. Flittson—Why, on so many occasions you have declared that Mrs. Shapeler had a husband who tried his best to be kind and indulgent, but this morning's paper says he attacked her yesterday and nearly killed her.

Flittson—Why, that account proves my claim.

Mrs. Flittson—Proves your claim that he tries his best to be kind and indulgent?

Flittson—Yes; haven't you often heard his wife say she wished she was dead?—Chicago News.

All Agreed.

Krankleigh—Now! I don't like my new neighborhood at all. Every man on the street's a cad.

Sharpe—You don't say!

Krankleigh—Yes, and there's one man in particular who isn't fit to live there at all.

Sharpe—Strange; that's what all the other neighbors say.—Philadelphia Press.

SALLY'S CALF.

Sally had a little calf, its hair was white as snow;

It strayed away one summer day when calves should never go.

Then Sally sat her quickly down and tears streamed from her eyes;

She never found that calf because she did not advertise.

And Sally had a brother Jim, who kept a village store;

He sat him down and smoked his pipe close by the open door;

And as the people passed along and did not stop to buy,

Jim smoked and sat and sat and smoked and winked his other eye.

And when the sheriff closed him out, still he lingered near,

Till Sally came to drop with him a sympathetic tear.

"How is it, sister, can you tell, why other merchants here

Sell their goods so readily and thrive from year to year?"

Remembering her long lost calf the little maid replied,

"Too well I know the secret, Jim, the others ADVERTISE."

The moral to this story, as you can plainly see,

Is to bring your advertising to The Semi-Weekly Bee.

Preacher and Editor.

The following summary of the situation, from an exchange, is evidently written by some one who speaks from experience.

Editing a newspaper, in some respects, is a good deal like preaching the gospel—truth must be presented in the form of generalities or some fellow will get bit and howl.

Few persons like truth, even the homeliest down if it takes them. But while preachers criticize editors for what they do say, no one thinks of giving them credit for what they do not say. Yet what they keep to themselves constitutes the major portion of what they know about people.

Very many people harbor the belief that newspapers are eager to publish derogatory things. It's a mistake. There isn't a newspaper that could not spring a sensation in the community at any time by merely telling what it knows.

There is not a newspaper that does not keep under the lock of secrecy scores of derogatory things which never meet the public eye or reach the public ear. Deciding what not to print is the most troublesome part of newspaper work.

The many good stories suppressed because of innocent relatives and for the good of the public nobody outside of a newspaper office has any way of knowing.

In some instances he who flies into a passion because a newspaper prints something about him which he considers complimentary has every reason to feel profoundly grateful to the newspaper for publishing so little of what it knows about him. And oftentimes the loudest bluffer is the most vulnerable to attack. A big noise is often a device employed to cover trepidation.

Newspapers put up with more bluffing than any other agency would endure. It is not because they lack courage; it is because they are unwilling to use their power to destroy or ruin unless the interest of society imperatively demands it.

It might be well for some people to reflect upon those truths and in silent gratitude accept mild admonition lest worse befall.

Course in Agriculture.

The Western Kentucky State Normal School offers a practical course of study in Elementary Agriculture. Demonstration and actual work done on school farm. Teachers will have an opportunity to prepare for teaching the subject. Great opportunities offered young men who expect to make farming a life work. Course begins Sept. 6, 1910. Write for information, Address H. H. Cherry, President, Bowling Green, Ky.

THERE IS A REASON

Why it pays to advertise in the SEMI-WEEKLY BEE:

It reaches a large number of wage earners who take no other paper.

It has an almost exclusive circulation in a community where $50,000.00 in money is paid out each month.

It is read by hundreds of people who buy what they want and who have money to pay for what they buy.

The only way to get your advertisement before the people of Earlington, Mortons Gap, St. Charles and immediate vicinity is through the medium of the Earlington Bee. A hint to the wise is sufficient.

Why do you gossip? Why talk about your neighbor? Why try to injure the character of any one? Would it not be much better even if you knew positively your neighbor was doing disgraceful things not to say anything about it. Would it not do more good to go to this neighbor and tell him or her as the case might be of their misdeeds and at the same time convert a sinner from the error of his way. Did you ever stop to think that the person who knows and talks every piece of gossip of the neighborhood is not held in very high esteem by the better class of people; and are really not considered the equal of the person about whom the gossip has been circulated. Out out this foolish, silly, criminal gossip about your neighbors and try your best to find something good to say if it is necessary to say anything at all and see if you won't feel better. No man or woman who habitually gossip can be a good citizen to say nothing of being a good christian.

Sensible Nonsense.

The following has been going the rounds of Kentucky press:

An Iowa editor who attended a party, was smitten with the charms of a fair damsel who wore a rose on her forehead and thus gushed about it.

About her nose

There is a rose;

Below the rose

There is a nose;

Rose, nose,

Nose, rose,

Sweet rose,

Dear nose.

Below her chin

There is a pin;

Above the pin

There is a chin.

Pin, chin,

Chin, pin,

Sweet pin,

Dear chin.

Whereupon a rival editor thus apostrophized the Iowa chap:

Above the stool

There is a fool;

Below the stool

There is a stool;

Stool, fool,

Fool, stool,

Old stool,

Damphool.

Below his seat

There are two feet;

Above these feet

There is a seat.

Seat, feet,

Feet, seat,

Soft seat,

Big feet.

An Appreciated Gift.

Dr. H. Bate presented Col. W. A. Toombs with an ancient astronomical telescope, which had been in his family for more than three-quarters of a century. It is over two feet long of massive build, two sections in length with finely ground lenses, low in power but with ample field and clear vision like corpus homo it is fearfully and wonderfully made and when new cost at least $100. It is an interesting relic of a past generation.

Dr. H. Bates, of Castillon Springs, Tenn., made his annual revolution last week. For many years it has been the custom of this gentleman to spend a few days each season in our city. During his sojourn here he preys upon Col. Toombs, of Methodist Hill, and the racket they keep up causes real estate to shrink fifty per cent in value. This last time, with hays, telescopes, tom-toms and whirrigigs, they reduced that part of town to a state bordering on homicidal insanity, which induced Bro. Reed to convene an emergency meeting to implore divine protection. They were out at un-canny hours with a giant telescope, trying to prey into the personal business of the ancient Lexington and actually caused that individual to lose the door and pull down his beads. The doctor left yesterday, smugly went to work and the public was visible evidence of returning

TEMPTATION.

Temptation is a fearful word. It indicates the beginning of a possible series of minute evils. It is the ringing of an alarm bell whose melancholy sounds may reverberate through eternity. Like the sudden sharp cry of "Fire!" under our windows by night, it should rouse us to instantaneous action and brace every muscle to its highest tension.

—Horace Mann.

OUR SODA IS GOOD SODA

To be really good, Soda Water must be more than a beverage that tastes good, it must be wholesome, must be free from every element of harm.

This requires apparatus that cannot contaminate, it requires care in the selection of materials, care in handling and care in serving the finished soda.

All such equipment is provided here and all such details have our constant attention.

We provide the people of Madisonville with a complete list of fountain beverages and each of these drinks is as near perfection as skill, experience and money can make it.

Of Interest to Fans

The Providence Athletic Club succeeded in putting a game over the E. A. C. after two seasons playing. The game was played at Providence Saturday and went only seven innings on account of E. A. C.'s having to catch a train. Barnes for Providence pitched first class ball, only one hit being made off in delivery and striking out 12 men. Mitchell for E. A. C. pitched good ball allowing four hits in seven innings, two of these being result of poor fielding, and these, coupled with errors at critical stages of game, gave Providence the game.

The E. A. C. boys were badly crippled in their lineup, having to use a Providence made as outfielder.

Umpire Bassett could only see a 2x8 inch space for E. A. C. and 10x10 poor square when Providence was in the field. The E. A. C.'s ran bases as well and a bit at several points of the game would have spelled victory.

Sammy: Batteries, P. Barnes and Payne. E. A. C.'s, Mitchell and Curtis. Struck out by Barnes twelve, Mitchell 4. Errors, Providence 8, E. A. C.'s two, numerous to mention.

Important Notice

On and after Aug. 22, 1910, the price of my self-locking routing board will be advanced to $1.50 instead of $1.25 as heretofore. The present high price of lumber makes it impossible to offer it for the same price as when material was much cheaper and it is not to be expected that the best board ever made would be offered below the price of inferior makes.

I will deliver in Earlington at $1.50 and ship to any point on receipt of the price, purchaser paying freight or express charges.

ESTABLISHMENT OF MARTIAL LAW

Keels With the Governor, Says Col. Bassett—Needed in Night Rider District.

Ever since Night Riding has attracted the attention that it has, the question of the right to establish martial law in the affected districts has been a much mooted one, many lawyers holding the view that it could not be declared by the governor until certain conditions had come to pass, and others holding to the view that the governor has the right to establish military rule whenever he saw fit.

Chief among those who held to the latter opinion was Lieut. Col. E. B. Bassett, of Hopkinsville, who was in personal charge of the soldiers that were on duty during the height of the night riding, and who rendered valuable service in the way. Col. Bassett found time then to study up on the laws governing the establishment of martial law, and he claims to have found ample foundation upon which the governor of the State is one with whom the power rests whenever, in his judgment, conditions warrant such a step. In Col. Bassett's opinion the very fact that conditions require the presence of soldiers really is an establishment of martial law. He submitted his law proofs to Governor Wilson and Attorney General Breathitt months ago, and was warmly complimented by both officials at the time upon the completeness of his theory. Now he has prepared this opinion in typewritten form, covering fifteen pages, and has given it out for publication.

Col. Bassett believes conditions demanding martial law now exist in certain sections of Kentucky, and his written opinion is given to the public for the purpose of correcting what he terms is "a very great misconception as to the authority of the governor to declare or institute martial law."

In his introduction Col. Bassett points in hurrying words the horrors of the night riding reign, declaring that they had desecrated churches by holding meetings there, of holding prayer meetings and even parading of the sacrament before going out on a raid; that the Knight Templar drill had been used in training the squads; that they have drawn upon the Masonic oath for "an oath that is clothed in the curling ivory of hell" in its significance; that "Masons have laid upon Masons the ignominious stripes, and ignored with contempt the design that has been a safe resort for ages; that churches have been arid, ministers have been incensed and maltreated, and schoolhouses "used as breeding place for their unholy confederation and headquarters for their villainous conspiracies." He charges that courts have been abused and have refused to do their duty in some instances and upon this more than anything else he bases his argument that martial law can be declared.

In conclusion, Col. Bassett says: "Under all conditions the military are recognized as conservators of the peace, defenders of the home and vindicators of the law which alone renders life, liberty and property secure, and they have no ambition or desire to be in a less noble attitude."

"We have not far to go in seeking for the reason for this universal deference to civil institutions on the part of military officers. It is a part of their very existence. They are educated to regard the civil law with the greatest respect and reverence and are solicitous to avoid being brought under the censure, the general principle that the civil is superior to military jurisdiction is so firmly implanted in their minds that they never question save in extreme cases which their good sense rejects at first sight as improper, the acts of agents of civil government. It can be easily imagined that a class of public officials thus imbued not only with a profound regard for civil administration, but a desire to avoid, if possible, having anything to do with it, would not seek even a temporary extension of their own authority over it—when however the necessity arises and the duty appears, they do not usually shrink from the responsibilities thereby imposed, conscious that they are actuated by love of good order not least of power."

"Kept back as a last resort, the military will, if discreetly used, restore quiet and give that security to society which the civil law cannot. That is its function on such occasions. The experience of nations has shown that this confidence in the soldier is not in danger of being abused, so long as government itself is administered for public good. Martial law thus exercised is based upon the necessities of social organization, and in certain parts of Western Kentucky today it is the one hope for the restoration of peace and good will and the guarantee of that liberty and safety that is the inalienable right of every American citizen."

Crabs in Conflict.

The most savage specimen of the crab species is found in Japan. As soon as he spies another of his kind he scrapes his claws together in rage, challenging him to a contest. No argument is wasted in preliminaries. The sand flies as the warriors push each other hither and thither, until at last one of them stretches himself out in the throes of death, still feebly rubbing his claws in defiance of the foe.

Make Every Dollar Worth More Than a Dollar

An educated ad-reader will never be poor. To "know advertising" is to have a practical knowledge of values—of things—of when and where to buy. No one, having and utilizing such knowledge, could ever be unthrifty, or in any sense careless or reckless of expenses. For such knowledge makes for thrift—for saving. It makes one proof against shams—false values—manipulated reductions.

The intelligent ad reader uses as much thought, consideration, education and ability in buying things as is required in earning the money that is spent for them. And that amounts to a substantial increase of the value of every dollar of the family revenue!
